New safety improvements coming to NE 72nd Drive

This summer, the Portland Bureau of Transportation (PBOT) plans to install additional concrete separators and a new crosswalk on NE 72nd Drive, plus concrete islands and markings to better designate travel lanes at the intersection of NE 72nd Drive and Sacramento Street.

PBOT and other City agencies received community feedback that these safety features would improve the experiences of people walking and biking along NE 72nd Drive. The crosswalk supports a new trail crossing planned by the Rose City Recreational Trail Project.
