6:30-7:15 – Streets 2035 (45 min)

Matt Berkow, PBOT Project Manager

The 2035 Comprehensive Plan establishes that public rights-of-way provide multiple public services, including multimodal transportation and access, utilities, trees and greening, and community uses. Streets 2035 aims to create a framework that binds the various policies and design requirements related to each of these public services and guide consistent decision-making in both a development context and for capital projects. Matt will provide an update on the Streets 2035 work to date, highlight examples where limited space creates challenges for a variety of right-of-way priorities, and lead a discussion with the PAC around relevant decision-making factors.

7:15-8:00 – Public Plazas (45 min)

Nick Falbo, PBOT Senior Planner

Over summer 2021, PBOT rolled out numerous public plazas around the city in partnership with local organizations, businesses, and communities. Community-led plazas are a key component of PBOT's Safe Streets Initiative, PBOT's Covid-19 response framework. PBOT staff is currently working on refinements to the public plaza program for next year and would like to take this moment to review current findings with the PAC regarding how the plazas are currently performing. Staff would like to solicit PAC input to help inform future iterations of the public plaza program.
